A CHRISTMAS STORY

DEC 2018 MTCOAA

An oldtimer helps out a newcomer who relapsed during the holidays

Each year here in Saskatoon we have what we call the alcathon which consists of AA meetings starting on Christmas eve and running straight through till midnight Christmas day. There's a new meeting every 45 minutes. The meetings are held at a church in the inner city and AA members from all groups show up with food and beverages and take turns chairing. It has been a great success here. The alcathon was started by a member who was concerned for those new to sobriety and thought they had nowhere to go over the holiday season.

One year, when I was chairing one of the meetings, I heard the following story.

A fellow member of AA was getting ready to load his family up for the Christmas tour to visit their family over Christmas day and thought he would take the time to go fill up the car while the family finished getting ready.

On his way back from the gas station, he saw a fellow that had been coming to his home group, but he had not seen at the meeting for a little while. As the fellow drove by on the other side of the road, a small voice told him turn around and follow him and talk to him.

Now, I know for myself I would have just ignored that little voice thinking I was too busy with my own life. I guess that is why God choose to use this fellow and not me!

This long-time member of AA choose to turn the car around and follow the newcomer. By the time he caught up to him, they had gone beyond the city limits. The newcomer's car was parked by the side of the road. The car was empty and there were foot tracks heading off into the woods. He followed the tracks through the snow until he came upon the newcomer sitting with a bottle of whiskey in hand.

"His plan was to drive out of town, drink the whiskey till he passed out, and freeze to death in the elements."

The old-timer sat down beside the newcomer and asked him what he was doing. The newcomer replied that he had gone over to spend Christmas with his wife and children the night before. He and his wife were in a trial separation due to his alcoholism and that things seemed to be on the mend.

Other family members came over that night for supper and Christmas cheer and the newcomer thought that a couple of glasses of eggnog couldn't hurt anything. After all, he had not had a drink for months. Well, he ended up so drunk that his wife called the police. He spent the night in the drunk tank. When he got out of jail that morning he felt all was lost, got a cab, picked up his car and went to the bootleggers and bought the whiskey. His plan was to drive out of town, drink the

THE PORCELAIN IDOL

During my drinking career there were countless mornings where my master, alcohol, brought me to my knees. With my arms clutched around the porcelain idol, I prayed to that other God, the one I knew nothing about-the God that those hypocritical church people prayed to. There were also several times when I was brought to my knees by those people with guns and badges who were always out to get me, following me and harassing me. When they forced me to my knees, I prayed to that God of hypocrites again. It never seemed to help much but I knew of nothing else to do.

After admitting I was powerless over alcohol and that my life had become very unmanageable, I was faced with that "God" thing again. I was told by many people in AA that if I didn't find a power greater than myself, I'd surely drink again. Confronted with those two options, I came to believe.

Almost five months into my new and sober life, I was sentenced to four years in prison and six months in the county workhouse. After spending about five months in lock down, I was given a chance to work for a local small-town police department. There was no pay involved and I'd still be in prison, but a job was a privilege and I accepted it without hesitation. I was somewhat afraid of those policemen who had always been out to get me, but just the same I went to work.

Less than two weeks passed before I knew almost everybody there and had become friends with most. They treated me like an equal not a criminal.

One of my many job duties was cleaning the bathrooms, so I found myself in front of the porcelain idol that eleven months before I'd been praying to. It seemed only natural that, while down on my knees cleaning toilets, I should pray to this God who, by his grace, had given me a chance at life again. Suddenly that God who never seemed to listen to me was becoming a God that I could understand, a loving and caring God who gives me strength and courage as long as I'm willing to strive for spiritual perfection. Today I am grateful for the time I had alone in the bathroom stall of that police station where I could relate to a God of my understanding.

IT'S NEVER TOO LATE

It took him thirty years to realize that it's never too late to ask for help

The night of December 23, 1992 will always be etched in my mind. After over-serving myself at the company Holiday party, and attempting yet another brainless drive home, I was stopped by the state police.

Mindless as to what tragedy could have happened, I sat handcuffed to a bench in a nearby district station, as I contemplated my arrest for driving under the influence. Wanting desperately to believe this was just a bad dream, the sight of my children in their footy pajamas holding their Mommy's hand, clarified a unmistakable reality.

Next, I overheard the officer's comments regarding my breathalyzer results. They were surprised I wasn't comatose. They weren't the only ones. Weeks later in court, the judge considered those results and decided I qualified for mandatory alcohol awareness classes, and a three month stint in AA.

This was a turning point in my life: a point where I considered my options limited to either continuing to drink, or becoming a monk and meditating on some mountain top. The decision was easy: I don't like heights and didn't want to shave my head! I remember though, thinking of that breathalyzer. That number scared me. It was the first indication (even to me) that I might have a drinking problem.

When I went to the AA meetings, the members looked younger than me, and I recall thinking I didn't have a chance at stopping even if I wanted to. Too late in the game was my mindset: I've gone too far. In retrospect, that was my "I still want to drink" voice, and would keep me experimenting off and on for the next 10 years.

Upon completing my court obligation to AA, I left my last meeting with a complete misunderstanding. I understood nothing of the condition I was in and the pain I would endure in the years to follow as the obsession for drink would consume my whole being. I remember vaguely giving merit to the possibility I could be alcoholic, but refused to recognize familiar behaviors I heard in those rooms. I also recall dismissing any solution I heard in those rooms, because frankly, it was too late for me. They had time on their side, where as time was my enemy as I saw it then.

This left little hope I would ever find a solution to my current funk, which was maintenance drinking in search of that elusive "high" I seldom found. I believed I couldn't have what those "young" guys had. This was when I was all of the ripe old age of forty-one.

Looking back at this type of thinking, I am amazed I could have rationalized any of it. Today I have a few "one-day-at-a-times" under my belt. It has allowed me to see just how sick I was, both spiritually and emotionally.

Lacking any spiritual filter between me and my alcoholic mind, I was that child who whistled in the dark, pretending not to be afraid. Only I was afraid, in fact I was terrified: terrified I'd lose everything, including my life to this disease. Years later, it was another fateful December night, my higher power revealed to me the bottom I desperately needed to hit. It was here I gave my will over to him, and almost instantaneously, the obsession of drink was lifted. It wasn't long before fear, which had governed every decision in my life, and kept me from making the ones I should have, was also remarkably absent.

When I voluntarily returned to those AA rooms, I remember listening to the younger guys "getting it" and I wondered why did take me thirty plus years? The answer was simple. I got it when I was supposed to get it. Today, the biggest revelation of all this for me is that I can control only my feelings toward any given event in my life, not the outcome. I get shivers down my spine each time I think of how I almost missed out on this wonderful program of Alcoholics Anonymous because I perceived it was too late. Its never too late to live life!

whiskey till he passed out, and freeze to death in the elements.

Somehow, the AA old-timer convinced him to pour out the whiskey, get in his car and follow him down to the alcathon downtown where I was chairing.

When I heard this story, it made me think of all the times I have ignored that little voice in my head over the years—the voice just asking me to do little things, but which I choose to ignore because I'm too busy with my own life. Since hearing this story, I have a new priority to listen to the guidance of my Higher Power more closely and put it first and foremost and pray people closest to me understand that. I can't say that God has used me to save a life as this man did, but you never know what a cup of coffee with someone who is hurting can do.

A GIFT TO JOE

Stuck in the rehab, he met a man who gave him a way out and also a way back in

I was at the beginning of my second year of sobriety. It was late in October and the leaves were falling. The days were cool and the time of year was inviting nostalgia. My drinking friends were long gone and the holidays were approaching. My family would all be getting together soon. They had stayed away my first sober holiday season. Was it because they were willing to give me the time to adjust? Or were they just uncomfortable with what it would feel like around the new me? Or were they just not yet willing to give up their own liquid holiday fest? I started to feel depressed. However, I was about to get a beautiful gift.

Several weeks prior, I had picked up my first-year medallion. I had made it. The countdown was over. Ed, my sponsor, had cautioned me about letting down my guard after the anniversary. I agreed, but how could I not? It had been the longest year of my life. When I thought back to that first 30 days, it seemed like an eternity ago. That 30-day chip represented the worst period of my life. Higher Power? I felt God didn't know me, and I certainly didn't know him then. All I had to accompany me during those days were endless thoughts of an uncertain future. Work, which was all I had to hang my identity on, well ... that was gone. I remember being in rehab, just going through the motions ... no alcohol, no job in my future.

Then one Friday afternoon, I met Ed. Fridays in the rehab were the most depressing days of the week. Some of us got to go home for the weekend—not me. When I saw Ed come in, it seemed like he'd attended that rehab before and must have been a poster boy for recovery. Why else would they let him come up to our floor and lead Big Book studies? I asked him clumsily if he had ever been asked to sponsor any of us rehab people. His answer was, "Only a couple of hundred." I was shocked. How could he possibly be my sponsor? I guess he read my thoughts. He smiled wistfully, saying, "Not one ever followed up with me after leaving here." I couldn't believe it. Not one? That was the beginning of my grasping the fatal nature of this disease. Somehow I scrambled up enough courage to ask him, "Do you have one more in you?" Ed laughed and said, "Let's do this."

After that, everything was different. I found myself looking forward to my daily call to Ed. We would have a mini meeting on the phone. He always knew exactly what to say.

A year later, Ed and I were still together. He had helped me work the first nine Steps. My thinking had settled down and I was beginning to consider returning to work. My weeks consisted of working the Steps with Ed, going to meetings with him and accompanying him to the rehab for that Friday Step Study. During the first year of my sobriety, that Step Study meeting was the high point of my week. I loved the fact that at the end of the meeting, I got leave and go home. I remember those blank, scared eyes looking back at me in those meetings—anything but secure in their future. We were the only hope some of them had. Ed and I kept sharing our recovery. Sometimes I actually felt we were making a difference.

One Friday afternoon after the meeting, I asked Ed if we could have a talk. I shared with him that since my first anniversary, I had been feeling a letdown and I was worried that this was the way it was going to be from now on. Ed surprised me as usual. He smiled reassuringly as he said, "I've been right where you are."

He opened his Big Book to the chapter "Working

With Others," and had me read: "Practical experience shows that nothing will so much insure immunity from drinking as intensive work with other alcoholics." Ed and I sat there and pondered that same paragraph I had read many times before. Ed looked at me and said, "It just so happens that I have a gift for you today. This Big Book meeting is where you and I first met, and you are the only sponsee from here to stick with me. So, it's yours."

It took a few moments for this to sink in. "Ed, you can't be serious," I said. "I can't possibly fill your shoes here. I don't have what it takes to help them get sober." He looked at me and smiled. "You're right, you don't. It's between God and them. You're just the messenger. But you're ready."

I led that Big Book study for three more years before handing it over to one of my sponsees from, yes, the same rehab Step Study meeting. I discovered how service is not about me or whether I think I'm ready. It's about God working through me. And he works through me even when I'm in one of those ruts we all sometimes find ourselves in while on this amazing journey.
