A LETTER FROM AN OLD FRIEND

SEPTEMBER 2019

In the process of making an amends, a man finds more reason to feel grateful for his sobriety

I received the following response to a Ninth Step letter sent to a friend I had not corresponded with for over 20 years. She was the first person to suggest to me that I might have a problem with alcohol. It was important to me to locate her to make amends for my behavior.

I had been sober approximately four years when I finally found her. I explained the reason for my letter, that I was a grateful member of AA, made my apologies and offered to share my experience, strength and hope with anyone she might know who might also suffer from this disease. I really did not expect a response of any kind and was quite surprised to hear back from her.

With her permission I share this “anonymized” version of her response as it describes much more eloquently than I ever could the serious nature of our disease.

Hi Dave,

First, let me tell you how much I admire your resolve to confront alcoholism. Congratulations on your upcoming fourth birthday, and may you have many more.

Second, apologies accepted.

You are fortunate indeed to be where you are. My husband was not so fortunate. I met him in 1987, a charming, hard-working, party-loving alcoholic, whom I married 6 years later. I believe alcohol was a significant factor in his death from suicide in 1997; he suffered depression and was intoxicated when he died. I wish I had known then what I know now about alcohol. I'd be much more willing to get help and less inclined to be angry that he was drinking all his money away. It's been a long, slow climb out of the grief and guilt that overwhelmed me for several years after he died.

A drunk got work at a construction site. After an hour or so, the boss yelled at him, "hey, everyone else is carrying eight bricks-how come you're only carrying four?"

"I don't know," replied the drunk, "maybe they are just too lazy to make two trips".

I cannot comprehend why some people experience an epiphany, as you did, and others leave this world without one. How different our lives would have been had we known to get help, or had there been an intervention, either divine or mortal. But those things, for whatever reason, did not happen.

Great to hear from you, and keep up the recovery.

"I explained the reason for my letter, made my apologies and offered to share my experience,

I can't describe the emotions I experienced as I read this note. We all know that alcoholism touches the lives of everyone the alcoholic comes in contact with, some more tangibly than others, some more tragically than others.

In my case I believe my higher power intervened in my life and showed me the way to AA. Any epiphany I may have had was the direct result of working the steps, developing a personal relationship with my higher power and paying attention to others who shared their experience, strength and hope with me. I hope that these words will resonate with another alcoholic so that they may find the serenity in their life that I have found in mine.

READY OR NOT, A NEW DAY IS UPON US!

Oh, what a rollercoaster of emotions a single day can be composed of bringing:

tears of

- ♦ loss
- ♦ fear
- ♦ compassion
- ♦ joy

all in one 24-hour period.

In the past, just one of these circumstances might have overshadowed the others, but today we are stronger and accept each circumstance as it presents itself, allowing us to feel it fully.

We know who is in charge and we don't have to be overwhelmed, as all is well with our soul.

- ♦ With love, there will be grief
- ♦ With struggles, there will be accomplishments
- ♦ With fear, our faith will grow
- ♦ For every negative, there is a positive

It is up to us as to which one we concentrate on and how much of it we hold onto or what we turn over to our Higher Power.

Today, let's not anticipate the changes yet to come, but take the day exactly as it is presented to us. Today we know how to be grateful for all of it!

Today we know tears are not a sign of weakness, but a prayer for help and guidance, a prayer of praise and thanks.

Often tears accompany growth.

Let's share it all with each other and grow together.

MAKING AMENDS

MYTHDIRECTION

TRADITION NINE

The short form of Tradition 9 reads: AA, as such, ought never be organized; but we may create service boards or committees directly responsible to those they serve.

The long form of Tradition 9 (which is also quite long) reads: Each AA group needs the least possible organization. Rotating leadership is the best. The small group may elect its Secretary, the large group its Rotating Committee, and the groups of a large Metropolitan area their Central or Intergroup Committee, which often employs a full-time Secretary. The trustees of the General Service Board are, in effect, our AA General Service Committee. They are the custodians of our AA Tradition and the receivers of voluntary AA contributions by which we maintain our AA General Service Office at New York. They are authorized by the groups to handle our overall public relations and they guarantee the integrity of our principle newspaper, "The AA Grapevine." All such representatives are to be guided in the spirit of service, for true leaders in AA are but trusted and experienced servants of the whole. They derive no real authority from their titles; they do not govern. Universal respect is the key to their usefulness.

The words "Let's keep it simple" were the last Bill W heard from Dr Bob shortly before his death in 1950. Aware that "it" in "keep it simple" meant our recovery program, Bill later wrote, "We need to distinguish sharply between spiritual simplicity and functional simplicity. When we get into questions of action by groups, by areas, and by AA as a whole, we find that we must to some extent organize to carry the message or else face chaos. And chaos is not simplicity."

Groups and service committees do need some form of minimum organization. If everybody thinks somebody else is going to purchase the coffee, what's the result? No coffee! To avoid this, one or more group members volunteer to be responsible for it.

All the way from trusted group servants to trustees on the General Service Board, those who take part in AA service work are assuming responsibility - not taking on authority. Many members don't know that AA is organized into 3 corporations. The General Service Board of AA is a non-profit corporation. It consists of 7 non-alcoholic and 14 alcoholic trustees who are nominated and elected for their business and professional skills.

The General Service Board, in behalf of all AA members, holds in trust literature copyrights and funds from the sale of literature and donations from groups and members. AA World Service, or AAWS, is also a corporation and one of the publishing arms of AA. The General Service Office is part of AAWS. The AA Grapevine is a separate corporation and is the 2nd publishing arm of AA. In many cases, an Intergroup Central Office will also be set up as a non-profit corporation.

Nine

Many members don't know that AA has something called a General Service Structure where groups are organized into districts and districts into areas and areas into regions and regions into Conferences with a General Service Board and General Service Office.

All of this organizational structure is described in the AA Service Manual and in "The AA Group" pamphlet. A very important trait of this organization is that it is represented by an upside down pyramid, or triangle, to signify that the top authority is the AA groups, not a board of 40 directors or a corporation or a committee. The General Service Structure is also organized into service committees to help carry the AA message to a wide variety of people and locations.

This includes Corrections and Treatment Center committees to ensure that AA meetings and literature are reliably and consistently brought in to those institutions. It also includes Public Information and Cooperation with the Professional Community service committees to inform professionals in the legal, medical, educational and business fields on what AA is and just as importantly what AA isn't. Also, the Public Information service committee arranges for AA public service announcements to be aired on local radio and TV stations. Other service committees consist of Special Needs, Grapevine and Archives. The local Intergroup Central Office also provides a variety of services in cooperation with other AA service committees.

Similarly, it takes group member participation and organization to ensure that group service work is done. These elected trusted servants are sometimes called "officers" and usually are chosen by the group for limited terms of service. Groups may also choose to have a Steering Committee to tend to the day-to-day operations of the group.

These service positions may have titles. But titles in AA do not bring authority - they describe services and responsibilities. And it has generally been found that giving members service positions solely to help them stay sober does not work. Instead, the group's welfare is of primary concern in choosing officers or trusted servants. It is also important to practice the principle of rotation so that all who wish to serve are provided the opportunity to do so.

For a group to keep carrying a message of recovery all kinds of organized services must be done.

It is through the combined efforts and organization of group members that:

- A meeting place is provided and maintained.
- Monthly programs are arranged and speakers are scheduled to speak.
- 7th Tradition contributions are collected, and group bills and expenses are paid.
- AA literature is on hand.
- Lists of local group meetings are available.
- Refreshments, such as coffee, are available as well as supplies.
- Calls for help are answered.
- ♦ Group problems are aired and resolved.
